```
parallel gap sample.py
~/code/neuron/al V2/src/singlecmpt test/
   Author: Tom Close
   Date: 8/1/2013
   Email: tclose@oist.jp
```

```
66
                                                                                                67
                                                                                                            post cell = h.Section()
       A minimum working example of a NEURON gap junction over MPI 68
                                                                                                            post cell.insert('pas')
                                                                                                69
                                                                                                            # Insert gap junction
                                                                                                70 71
                                                                                                            gap_junction.g = 1.0 72
                                                                                                73
                                                                                                74
                                                                                                75
10 import os
                                                                                                            post_v = h.Vector()
       import argparse
                                                                                                76
       import numpy as np 77
       # This is a hack I use on our cluster, to get MPI initialised=True. There is prob
                                                                                                        pc.setup transfer() # Record time
       # wrong with our setup but I can't be bothered trying to work out what it is at t
                                                                                                        rec t = h.Vector() his point. All rec t.record(h. ref t) 15
       # suggestions welcome :)
                                                                                                82
16
                                                                                                83
17
            from mpi4py import MPI #@UnresolvedImport @UnusedImport 84
                                                                                                        # Run simulation
18
                                                                                                85 19
           print "mpi4py was not found, MPI will remain disabled if MPI initialized==Fal pc.set maxstep(10)
                                                                                                88 20 from neuron import h, load_mechanisms
                                                                                                        #h.finitialize(-60)
       # Not sure this is necessary, or whether I can just use h.finitialize instead of 89
                                                                                                        h.stdinit()
21 22
       h.load_file('stdrun.hoc') pc.psolve(100)
23
24
       # The GID used for the gap junction connection. NB: this number is completely ind
                                                                                                        pc.runworker()
                                                                                                95
       # GID's used for NEURON sections.
25
       GID_FOR_VAR = 0
                                                                                                96
26
                                                                                                97
27
28
       # Arguments to the script
                                                                                                98
29 parser = argparse.ArgumentParser(description=__doc__)
                                                                                                        t_array = np.array(rec_t) parser.add_argument('--plot', action='store_true', help="Plot the data instead of 30 100
                                                                                                        if mpi rank == 0:
                                                                                                           pre_v_array = np.array(pre_v) 31
       parser.add_argument('--output_dir', type=str, default=os.getcwd(), 102
                                                                                                        if mpi_rank == (num_processes - 1):
                                                                                               103
32 help="The directory to save the output files into") post_v_array = np.array(post_v) 33
       parser.add_argument('--gap_mechanism_dir', type=str, default=os.getcwd(), 104
                            help="The directory to load the gap mechanism from") 105
                                                                                                        # Either plot the recorded values
                                                                                               106 35
       args = parser.parse_args() 107
                                                                                                            print "Plotting..."
       # Load gap mechanism from another directory if required
                                                                                               108
                                                                                                            import matplotlib.pyplot as plt 38
       if args.gap mechanism dir is not os.getcwd():
                                                                                               109
                                                                                                            if mpi_rank == 0: 30
           load_mechanisms(args.gap_mechanism_dir) 110
                                                                                                                pre_fig = plt.figure() 40
       # Get the parallel context and related parameters
                                                                                               111
       pc = h.ParallelContext()
                                                                                               112
42
       num processes = int(pc.nhost()) 113 plt.xlabel("Time (ms)") 114
                                                                                                                plt.ylabel("Voltage (mV)") mpi_rank = int(pc.id())
       print "On process {} of {}".format(mpi_rank+1, num_processes)
                                                                                               115
                                                                                               116
                                                                                                                pre_fig = plt.figure() 117
46
       print "Creating test network..."
       # The pre-synaptic cell is created on the first node and the post-synaptic cell o n the last node 119
                                                                                                                plt.xlabel("Time (ms)")
48
       # (NB: which will obviously be the same if there is only one node)
                                                                                               120
                                                                                                                plt.ylabel("Voltage (mV)") 121
49
       if mpi rank == 0:
                                                                                                            plt.show()
           print "Creating pre-synaptic cell on process {}".format(mpi_rank)
50 122
                                                                                                        else:
            # Create the pre-synaptic cell
                                                                                               123
                                                                                                            # Save data
                                                                                                            print "Saving data..." 52
            pre_cell = h.Section()
                                                                                               124
                                                                                               125
                                                                                                            if mpi_rank == 0: 53
           pre_cell.insert('pas')
54
            # Connect the voltage of the pre-synaptic cell to the gap junction on the pos
                                                                                               126
                                                                                               127
55
            pc.source_var(pre_cell(0.5)._ref_v, GID_FOR_VAR) 128
56
            # Stimulate the first cell to make it obvious whether gap junction is working 129
57
            stim = h.IClamp(pre_cell(0.5))
                                                                                               130
58
            stim.delay = 50 131
                                                                                                        print "Done."
50
            stim.amp = 10
                                                                                               end 60
            stim.dur = 100
            # Record Voltage of pre-synaptic cell
62
            pre_v = h.Vector() 63
           pre_v.record(pre_cell(0.5)._ref_v)
        if mpi rank == (num processes - 1):
            print "Creating post-synaptic cell on process {}".format(mpi_rank)
```

```
Create the post-synaptic cell
   gap_junction = h.gap(0.5, sec=post_cell)
    # Connect gap junction to pre-synaptic cell
   pc.target var(gap junction. ref vgap, GID FOR VAR)
    # Record Voltage of post-synaptic cell
   post_v.record(post_cell(0.5)._ref_v)
Finalise construction of parallel context
print "Finished network construction on process {}".format(mpi rank) print "Setting maxstep on process {}".format(mpi rank) print "Finitialise on process {}".format(mpi rank) print "Solving on process {}".format(mpi rank) print "Running worker on process {}".format(mpi_rank) print "Completing parallel context on process {}".format(mpi rank) print "Finished run on process {}".format(mpi_rank)
Convert recorded data into Numpy arrays
if args.plot and num processes == 1:
        plt.plot(t_array, pre_v_array) plt.title("Pre-synaptic cell voltage")
    if mpi_rank == (num_processes - 1):
        plt.plot(t_array, post_v_array) plt.title("Post-synaptic cell voltage") np.savetxt(os.path.join(args.output_dir, "pre_v.dat"), np.transpose(np.vstack((t array, pre v array))))
   if mpi_rank == (num_processes - 1):
        np.savetxt(os.path.join(args.output_dir, "post_v.dat"), np.transpose(np.vstack((t_array, post_v_array))))
```